Keep in mind that

- When applying for the registration of a contract easement or right of use, please provide the original agreement.
- Please send a simple map or sketch of the property or site-leasehold indicating the location of the right, for example a road, well or cable.
- If there is a reservation noted on the transferor's deed of title, this may mean that he or she cannot transfer a right on the property without somebody's consent. You will then need to enclose a copy of the acquisition document showing the inscribed reservation and a document proving that the reservation has been fulfilled. This may, for example, be a consent to the transfer or a document showing that the reservation is no longer valid.
- If the transferor or the right holder is a legal person, please enclose a registration certificate showing the authorised signatories.
- If the application concerns cancellation of a registration of easement or right of use, the right holder shall sign the application. Exceptions are cases where the right has expired, in which case the owner of the transferring property can also submit the application. You will then need to send a copy of the contract and documents proving that the right is no longer valid. Please include the date of registration and file number relating to the right in the application. In the case of extinction of a right of use, a copy of the contract must always be enclosed.
- Please check that all the details in the application are correctly filled in and that the contract fulfils the formal requirements.
